Business Increase Sustained Through 1st Half November

St. Louis Federal Reserve District (Arkansas) Maintains Gains

BEATS OCTOBER 1933

Department Stores Up 5.6% Over Same Month Year Ago

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—(AP)—Industry and trade in the Eighth District during October and the first half of November "continued the improvement noted earlier in the fall," the St. Louis Federal Reserve bank says in its monthly report, released Friday.

The usual statistics and data employed in gauging conditions reflected some spotty and irregular trends, but on the whole indicated distinct betterment as contrasted with both similar period immediately preceding and a year ago, the review states.

"The demand for commodities is still in large volume, especially consumer goods," the review states. "Production of merchandise in this category was at relatively higher levels, a number of lines which ordinarily curtail output at this season of the year showing less than the usual contraction. With few exceptions, wholesale and jobbing lines investigated by the bank reported sales in excess of the like periods during the four preceding years."

Good October Gain
"In a number of classifications October volume was greater in September, where declines were recorded in this comparison they were mainly seasonal in character and smaller than the average during the past decade. Among the wholesale lines in this area which showed increases in both comparisons were books and shoes, electric supplies, hardware and stoves. The volume of retail trade was also in excess of a year ago."

These results, the review points out, were achieved in spite of the retarded movement of seasonal merchandise caused by the mildest autumn weather experienced in ten years. The high temperatures also had the effect of reducing activities in certain manufacturing lines.

Production of bituminous coal "increased measurably" from September to October, and tonnage lifted was in excess of that of October, 1933. Consumption of electricity in the five largest cities during October declined slightly from September, but was about 2 per cent greater than in October last year.

While interfering to some extent with seasonal merchandising, the clear, mild October weather was ideal for agriculture.

As reflected by sales of department stores in the principal cities, retail trade in October was 6 per cent less than in September and 5.6 per cent greater than in October, 1933; cumulative total for the first ten months of this year was 16.8 per cent greater.

2-Inch Rain Here Thanksgiving Day

Severe Cold Snap Forecast Friday; Freeze Is Likely

Minimum of 30 Degrees Official Forecast for Little Rock

HOPE LOSES GAME

Bobcats Swamped 13-0 by Nashville in Battle of Rain and Mud

Thanksgiving was a raw day for Hope and Hempstead county citizens who had planned week-end trips and holiday festivities.

The day dawned with overcast skies and a sharp drop in temperatures. A threatening rain broke with torrential fury early in the morning, lashing this area with nearly two inches of precipitation.

The rainfall receded slightly around noon, but more than a drizzle continued all day and up into the night.

The Hope-Nashville football game was played, as scheduled, in a down-pour, and on a water-soaked field, the Nashville team emerged with a 13-to-0 victory.

The first half was scoreless. In the third quarter Littlefield of Nashville got loose in the muck and mire and was brought down on the one-yard line. From that point Cornellison plunged over.

In the same quarter V. Tollett advanced to within a few yards of the goal line, where Cornellison again plunged over. The Bobcats had several chances to score, but failed.

The crowd was small as compared to the throng that would have attended, had the day been clear. Despite the chill, dreaching rain, many stood and watched the two teams fight until the final whistle.

Several persons from Hope attended the annual Ouachita-Henderson State college game at Arkadelphia. That game was also played in a down-pour. Ouachita won, 7 to 0.

Many gathered at the homes of relatives and enjoyed turkey dinner and birthday parties.

Some attended motion picture shows, while others, without transportation, huddled around firesides and glanced with boredom at the clock as the hours dragged by.

In general Thanksgiving in Hope and Hempstead county was observed in a safe and sane manner.

The two Hope hospitals reported no accidents or deaths resulting from the holiday.

Criminal activity was curbed to the limit. Police reported no arrests. Not even a drunk showed up all day.

2 Inches of Rain
The Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment station reported that 1.6 inches of rain was recorded from 6 p. m. Thursday morning to 6 p. m. Friday morning. 2.8 inches fell, bringing the total to 1.88 inches.

Thursday's maximum temperature was 56. The minimum was 36. Friday morning the mercury stood at 35, recorded at 6:30. At 11 o'clock Friday morning it had risen to 40 degrees.

The Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment station also reported that a total of 8.11 inches of rainfall had been recorded during the month of November.

The highest temperature was November 8 with 84.5 degrees. The lowest was recorded on the 23rd, 28.5 degrees.

The weather forecast for Hope and this area Friday night was fair and freezing, with warmer and fair weather for Saturday.

John Ward, Local Pioneer, Dies, 82

Early Hempstead Settler Succumbs at His Home in Poteau, Okla.

John Ward, 82, one of the first settlers of Hope, died Wednesday at his home in Poteau, Okla. He was buried Thursday at Poteau.

Surviving are three daughters and one son of Poteau, a sister, Mrs. Mollie Lane of near Hope, and a brother, Henry Ward of Atlanta, Texas.

Mr. Ward left Hope about 30 years ago after operating a business establishment here nearly 10 years. Several nephews and nieces reside in Hempstead county.

Miss Faye Samuel Takes 4-H Honors

Miss Faye Samuel took third place in the state 4-H contest for the best exhibit of canned fruit and vegetables. She was awarded $10. The jars exhibited by Miss Samuel were canned peaches and Okra.

Bulletins

MORRILTON, Ark.—(AP)—Lewis Stills, 60, relief worker, was fatally injured Friday when struck by a car driven by M. L. Benson, of Searcy. A coroner's jury held the accident to be unavoidable.

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Erwin Funk announced Friday he had submitted his resignation as administrative manager of the Graphic Arts Code Authority for Arkansas to the national authorities at Chicago. Funk recommended that his duties be assigned temporarily to C. Armitage Harper, Arkansas Press association secretary.

J. C. Burke, DeAnn Pioneer, Is Dead

Succumbs at 74—Funeral to Be Held at 2 Saturday Afternoon

J. C. (Jack) Burke, 74, pioneer citizen, churchman and landowner of the DeAnn community, died at his home there at 8 o'clock Thanksgiving night, following an illness of three years.

His funeral will be held at Holly Grove at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, with the Rev. Mr. Rogers, of Emmet Methodist church, officiating.

Mr. Burke moved to DeAnn as a small boy with his parents, reared a family there, and was a leader in the community for the last two generations.

He and Mrs. Burke recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. He was a life-long member of the community Methodist church.

Mr. Burke is survived by his widow, Mrs. Beadie Burke, sister of W. S. Atkins of Hope; and two sons and two daughters, Jesse and Roy Burke, of DeAnn; and Mrs. Wesley Harris, of Prescott, and Mrs. Burton Ellis, of Emmet.

Mr. Burke was an uncle of Homer Burke, of Hope.

Would Increase Bankhead Payment

Co-op President Urges Support of Law Another Year—Hits Propaganda

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A movement was underway Thursday to have congress appropriate $13,000,000 to defray the cost of administering the Bankhead cotton control act this year and next, thus increasing payments to co-operating farmers in 1935.

At present, administration costs come from processing tax receipts. A. A. A. officials said, more of the tax receipts could be used for direct "parity" payments to producers.

Secretary Wallace, in announcing details of the 1935 cotton program, described such a plan as "social justice," explaining it would increase payments to share-croppers and tenant farmers.

Wallace estimated cost of placing the Bankhead act into operation this year at $7,000,000 and said his administration probably would cost $6,000,000 in 1935.

Would Retain Law
MONROE, La.—(AP)—News C. Williamson, president of the American Cotton Co-operative Association, issued a statement at his home in Lake Providence Thursday urging continuation of provisions of the Bankhead act for another year. "Then take up a long-time program, if a better one can be presented," he said.

Mr. Williamson's statement follows: "The intense activities of the cotton trade, including the exchanges in opposition to the Bankhead bill, do not represent the attitude nor the feelings of the cotton farmers in any sense of the word. It is a very rare thing to hear a cotton farmer express opposition to a continuation of the present program for another year, and I know it does appear that the farmers themselves should be in a better position to know the effects of the control program than those who only make a profit by handling the cotton after it is ginned."

"I am speaking solely from the standpoint of a cotton grower myself, and I do not hesitate to say, I think it would be disastrous to abandon the Bankhead bill at this time."

"I was not in favor of this before it was enacted into law, but we are right in the middle of the two-year plan now, and I have seen no adequate substitute offered which would guarantee the desire and the natural inclination of the cotton farmer."

World Is Lashed by Freak Weather Thursday, Friday

Typhoon Rakes Philippines, and Earthquake Threatens Hawaii

STORMS IN SOUTH

Cloudburst in Dixie, While Leadville, Colo., Freezes at 2 Below

By the Associated Press.
The world had varied "weather" Friday.

The Philippines were struck by a typhoon, the most severe in the series that has claimed 300 lives within three months.

Honolulu felt a faint submarine earthquake shock.

Strong winds left 30 injured in Louisiana and Mississippi, and floods threatened in North Carolina.

The temperature fell in the Rockies, with 2 degrees below zero reported at Leadville, Colo.

Fear Tidal Wave
HONOLULU, Hawaii.—(AP)—A severe submarine earthquake sent alarming reports to the States Friday that a tidal wave would sweep the Hawaiian Islands—but it caused scarcely a stir in Honolulu.

The shock centered about 2,000 miles at sea.

Observers said the disturbance might cause a tidal wave, but the possibility was so slight that they expected none.

The tidal wave was supposed to arrive at midnight, but the deadline passed without any sign of the wave (Hawaiian time is many hours ahead of Hope, accounting for the phrase "Friday midnight").

Mississippi Storm
NEWTON, Miss.—(AP)—More than a score of persons were injured Thursday night, many seriously, when cyclonic winds ripped through the outskirts of Newton, leveling dwellings and outbuildings over a two-mile area.

Sweeping in from the South, the storm struck the town shortly after 8 p. m. with such suddenness that few persons had an opportunity to seek safety. Eighteen of the more seriously injured were rushed to the Newton infirmary, while an undetermined number were treated in private homes.

Every physician and nurse in Newton was pressed into service, and medical aid was rushed from nearby towns.

Thirteen of the most seriously injured were white persons, while five were negroes.

Labor Situation Better in State

Arkansas Employment Gains Fractional Per Cent in November

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Arkansas showed a gain of four-tenths of one per cent in employment this month, Assistant State Labor Commissioner Harry Malcolm reported Friday.

Commenting upon the estimate of 500,000 additional unemployed persons this month over last month, as reported by the American Federation of Labor for the nation as a whole, Malcolm said the labor outlook is pleasing as far as Arkansas is concerned.

J. L. Powell Retires After 30 Years of Carrying Rural Mail

Hope Man Has Driven 242,052 Miles—and Rain or Shine "the Mail Always Went Through"

When J. L. Powell, veteran mail carrier, drove up to the postoffice Friday afternoon after completing his daily route, he had traveled a total of 242,052 miles—or nearly 10 times the distance around the world.

For 30 years he has been carrying the mail for Uncle Sam. Friday was his last day. He's retiring. Thirty years is the limit, a restriction the federal government clamps on employees of the postoffice department.

A remarkable fact in covering the distance around the route which takes him to Spring Hill, then a few miles east and back to Hope, is that Mr. Powell has never met with a major accident.

Numerous times he has ploughed his automobile in the mud and mire, in ditches and mudholes where inclement weather made the road dangerous and often times hazardous.

"The Mail Goes Through"
Sometimes the hours were long, the

In Fatal Honeymoon Triangle

TOP—A double murder ended the honeymoon of Joseph Stelmets, 22, Los Angeles divinity student, and his bride of two weeks, formerly Ruth Armstrong, 17, Hollywood movie aspirant. The couple are shown in affectionate pose. Stelmets shot his wife and the Rev. Joseph Leonard, Lawrenceville, N. J., Roman Catholic priest, when he found them in the priest's New York hotel room.

Police to Crack Down on Traffic

Will Fine for Illegal Parking, and Running of Third Street Stop-Signs

A warning to local car owners that city police are going to "crack down" on traffic violators was issued Friday by Chief Clarence E. Baker.

The chief pointed his remarks particularly at two classes of violators:

1. Those who park their cars in alleys near the Saenger theater, and elsewhere throughout the city, in violation of the city ordinance which requires alleys to be kept clear in case a fire compels quick access to the fire department.

2. Those who "run" stop signs on Third street—a "through" boulevard carrying transcontinental traffic on No. 67.

Police are being posted occasionally at all stop-signs on Third street, and local cars will be stopped and their owners fined if they fail to make a full stop.

Chief Baker said Hope is going to enforce the same boulevard regulations on Third street that are enforced on trunk highways streets in cities everywhere, for the particular protection of tourists who come through this city by the hundreds daily.

Girls' Death Is Family Tragedy

Pennsylvania Police Believe Man Killed Daughters and Self

CARLISLE, Pa.—(AP)—Positive identification of a man found dead in the Pennsylvania mountains as Elmo J. Noakes, of Roseville (Calif.), was announced Friday by Harry L. McElroy, chief of detectives of the Pennsylvania State Police.

The identification was made through the records of the U. S. Marine Corps.

Murder and Suicide
CARLISLE, Pa.—(AP)—While the state police believe Pennsylvania's mountain mystery involving the death of a couple and their three little girls has been virtually solved, Major C. M. Wilhelm, deputy superintendent of state police, said Friday that the investigation is far from closed.

The bodies have been tentatively identified as Elmo J. Noakes, his three daughters and niece.

State police believe the three children were killed by suffocation, and the man later shot his niece and himself.

For years he carried the mail with horse and buggy. That was before automobiles came into use. Since he replaced old Dobbin with his first model "T", Mr. Powell has worn out eight automobiles.

He humorously recalls the first automobile he ever owned.

Dr. G. E. Cannon owned a car very similar to it, and obligingly offered to teach me how to drive.

"We started to Washington, with the doctor at the wheel. On the north-

November Record Set for Ozarks Region of State

Fall Is Inch Heavier Than Previous November Record Set in 1925

FREEZE REPORTED

Fair and Colder Is Forecast for State Friday Night

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—The heaviest November snowfall on record blanketed northwest Arkansas Friday, causing the interruption in some places of wire communication, and slowing down highway travel.

A fall of 9.2 inches of snow was reported at Bentonville, of which 7 inches remained to cover the countryside.

This exceeded by nearly one inch the previous record fall for November, which occurred in 1925.

Snow also was reported from other places in the northwest section of the state, but the fall was not so heavy.

The mercury descended below freezing at Bentonville and Rogers, but rose somewhat, early Friday.

Rain was reported at Hot Springs, El Dorado, Prescott, and generally throughout the state, with mixed rain and snow at Eureka Springs.

It was partly cloudy Friday, with continued cold forecast for Friday night.

A minimum of 30 degrees was the official prediction for Little Rock Friday night.

Japan Declares It Is Keeper of Peace

Foreign Minister Pictures Problem of Arms in Eastern World

TOKIO, Japan.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Kiko Hirota Friday pictured Japan as the champion of the "principle of non-nonsense and nonaggression" in the deadlocked naval conversations in London. He told the House of Peers, in extra session, that the empire is actuated by "the spirit of disarmament."

Called upon to tell his compatriots how the empire has fared with the rest of the world, Hirota side-stepped the most troublesome developments since his last formal report to parliament January 23. He did not include in his report Japan's preparations to abrogate the Washington naval treaty, but declared the Japanese are continuing efforts in London for a "new and reasonable treaty."

He did not touch upon the prospect of breakdown in the parleys or the dangers of a naval race, which is the major anxiety of the moderate elements of Japan.

Saying "a better understanding prevails among the powers concerning Japan's position in Eastern Asia," the foreign minister ignored the current heated diplomatic conflict with America and Great Britain over the Manchurian oil plans, and Japan's alleged violation of the "open door."

Crimson Tide Given Annual Bid to Pasadena's Rose Bowl

PASADENA, Calif.—(AP)—Alabama was selected Friday to meet Stanford in the Rose Tournament football game here New Year's day.

It will be the Crimson Tide's fourth trip to the Rose Bowl.

In three previous appearances Alabama won twice and tied once.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Tuberculosis Depends on Person's Makeup.

Science has gone far enough with treatment of tuberculosis to be able to tell why some people are likely to get this disease while others are not, and what there is in the physical structure of a person to make him more predisposed to this disease than are others.

Of course, you know that each person has a construction which is individually his own. In other words, no two of us are made up exactly alike.

By makeup we refer not only to the structure of the body, but also to the powers which it has in its blood and in its tissues to resist disease.

There seems to be some evidence that all of us inherit our constitutions largely from our ancestors and that some types of people can resist disease better than others.

It is known also that the germs vary in their makeup and that they must find soil to which they can accommodate themselves. The germ of tuberculosis that affects birds will not live in the body of a human being. On the other hand, the germ that affects cattle will.

House Divided—Can't Teach Children to Respect Parents

"Your politics, mother," mocks dad, "are as mixed as vegetable soup. You never know what you are talking about."

Another time he says, "For heavens sake, stop that humming. You can't carry a tune."

He says the children have many a joke about poor, simple mother's ability to think or act. Understanding grins and winks, even while they are devouring her excellent food, wearing her nicely laundered clothes and living in a cozy home in which she acts as engineer, fireman, conductor, brakeman and porter, mother is made to feel like an imbecile and a fool.

Across the street lives a family just the opposite.

Oh, yes, Mrs. Smith, too, is a good housekeeper and Mr. Smith is a good provider. But it is Mr. Smith who is laid open to criticism of not to ridicule.

Mother Is Boss Here

Not through command on her politics or on her knowledge or wit, but by bulldozing and belittling.

This wife is a determined person who thinks everyone but herself is wrong. The children have borrowed their mother's open contempt for that wee small fraction known as dad, who only hands out all his money and plays job in general. That he cannot hand out twice as much as he does is not counted as the least of his sins. Actually he is never allowed to forget it.

In such unions—where one half is dominating or merely dominating—the other partner learns that the only road to peace is good natured acceptance.

Farce or Drama

Families become either comic or melodramatic after a time without realizing that to an onlooker they are a farce or a play.

Too frequently children align themselves with the most forceful parent. As they grow older they may, of course, resent it and take sides with the weaker, but generally speaking it undermines respect.

The right answer, then, seems to be for parents to boost each other's rating before the children, instead of belittling it. One-sided families are seldom a success.

Cleaves Up "Riddle" of Jutland Battle—Book Finds Great Sea Fight Was British Triumph

Early in June, 1916, the German government announced that there had been a great naval battle in the North

Sea and that the Germans had won it. They told their own people on the idea, they told the neutral world, and they even told the British public; and this day the ordinary man recalls the battle of Jutland as an occasion when the British fleet took something very much like a healthy licking.

Vice-Admiral J. E. T. Harper of England, and Langhorne Gibson, American writer, have collaborated on a detailed examination of this greatest of all sea fights, and have presented their findings in "The Riddle of Jutland."

The riddle, as they see it, is how anybody ever supposed that the fight was a German victory.

To be sure, more English than German ships were sunk. But the German fleet was running for its life when the battle ended. Its fighting power had been so impaired that only darkness saved it from annihilation.

The battle convinced Admiral Scheer, its commander, that it was suicidal to dream of disputing control of the sea with the British; his advocacy of unlimited submarine warfare came because he knew, after Jutland, that that was the only field in which his navy could operate with any hope of success.

The authors also rehabilitate the reputation of the British commander, Admiral Jellicoe. He, they say, and not Beatty, who led the British battle cruisers, was the hero of Jutland.

The authors have a fine feeling for the spectacular elements of this battle, and they have written a singularly exciting and dramatic book.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

ANN HOLLISTER, pretty and 20, sells the family antiques to pay debts of her father, now dead. On the day of the sale a young man, stopped by motor trouble, comes to her home to telephone. After he leaves Ann finds a blue vase missing and in its place a note signed "P.K." and $50.

Ann gets work as a librarian and becomes friendly with SARAH KENDALL, also employed at the library. She meets TONY MURKIN, commercial artist, and is attracted by him, though Sarah warns her that Tony is a rascal and irresponsible.

The chief librarian sends Ann to interview old PETER KENDALL. Society ladies to obtain permission to open a branch library in Kendallwood, factory community. Ann is unsuccessful but on the way home she meets the young man who stopped at her home in Georgia. They talk. Later word comes that Peter Kendall has agreed to the opening of the library.

Ann sees the young man again in a night club and learns he is Peter Kendall's grandson, PETER KENDALL, II. Leaving the night club, Ann sees Tony with LILLEN WALLACE.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VII

"Valeria is a cheat," Sarah said. "Everyone knows it except Peter Kendall."

and went into a waste-paper basket. "Wasn't it a swell moon last night?" When he'd been seeing the moon with Lillean! Well, he'd soon know how Ann was feeling. And then after she reached home there was the usual call, and Ann said, yes, of course, she'd like to go for a drive.

The busy morning had been helpful. She was glad she would be able to raise a calm face and friendly eyes to Tony. It would be much better to talk things out quietly, without letting him know the storm of emotion that had swept her.

She was ready when Tony came at seven. Soon they were spinning along the street in his battered blue roadster.

"You look pale. Busy today?" "Yes," Ann said. "Awfully."

"Sorry about last night. I worked late on a rush order and then a bunch of fellows dropped by with Lillean and another girl and dragged me out to the Blue Jug."

"Yes."

"It was hard to keep the glow of happiness from her voice. If Tony had deceived her about last night she would never have forgiven him. But he hadn't tried to cover up. He had come through with everything. What an idiot she had been, lying awake for hours!"

"I started to call you but it was late and I figured a good girl like you would be in bed. Besides, it wasn't your crowd."

"Well, it doesn't matter," Ann laughed. "I went, too."

"You were at the Blue Jug?" "Yes."

"Who took you?" roughly. "Dick Randall."

The busy morning had been helpful. She was glad she would be able to raise a calm face and friendly eyes to Tony. It would be much better to talk things out quietly, without letting him know the storm of emotion that had swept her.

She was ready when Tony came at seven. Soon they were spinning along the street in his battered blue roadster.

"You look pale. Busy today?" "Yes," Ann said. "Awfully."

"Sorry about last night. I worked late on a rush order and then a bunch of fellows dropped by with Lillean and another girl and dragged me out to the Blue Jug."

"Yes."

"It was hard to keep the glow of happiness from her voice. If Tony had deceived her about last night she would never have forgiven him. But he hadn't tried to cover up. He had come through with everything. What an idiot she had been, lying awake for hours!"

France, Ridden by Panic, Adopts NRA

New Premier Pledges Program to Revive Dormant Industry

PARIS, France.—(AP)—Hundreds of discontented peasants, seeking to march through the streets of Paris in opposition to a government ban on demonstrations, clashed with police Wednesday, but were dispersed without casualties.

Proposes French NRA

PARIS, France.—(AP)—Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin, speaking to the nation Tuesday night, promised France something like the NRA to help her out of the industrial doldrums.

A program of "depression legislation" for adaptation of industrial production to consumption was outlined by the premier in an address delivered before a banquet of commercial and industrial organizations. The speech was broadcast.

The legislation, the youthful premier said, "will legalize and render obligatory, only for the duration of the depression and under certain guarantees in favor of consumers, producers' agreements tending to regulate production."

"A committee of experts will decide, moreover, what industries cost the country more than they yield and those which must be protected."

Details of the new premier's plan by manufacturers' agreements were not disclosed.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Woman Who Is Given Beauty Aids for Christmas Gets Cream of Gifts

If Santa Claus could summarize his bad gone to the bat with his grandfather for her. And he said nothing about the brief visit in Ann's home, in Georgia.

Valeria might not understand his interest in helping the other girl.

"So she works," Valeria said. She was thinking that it wasn't likely Peter would be even mildly interested in a girl who didn't move in his social circle. It was strange how upset Valeria had been after she saw this girl wave to Peter. There was something arresting about her—an unusual quality in her beauty. She had charm and personality.

Unexpectedly Valeria returned to the attack. "You two seemed on very friendly terms."

"Nice girl," Peter said. "Evidently you think so."

Peter turned. Valeria's curved lips were compressed into a straight line. He knew she was angry. He threw an arm about her affectionately, pulling her head against his shoulder. "Sweetheart, don't tell me you're jealous."

"Don't be silly, Peter. It's only that it seemed queer for you to be interested in a girl you don't know."

"Who said I was interested?" "You aren't—not the slightest."

"Well, of course not, little idiot," Peter's tone was vehement. "Well, why didn't you say so in the beginning?"

Valeria lapsed into silence. She had just remembered Peter hadn't explained why a perfectly strange girl had waved to him. Or was she perfectly strange, in spite of what Peter had said?

PETER thought Valeria was tired, or in a thoughtful mood, not dreaming she was still wondering about Ann's gay salute. He liked to think that back of Valeria's vivacity was depth of character. Once the carefree days of his fiancée's girlhood behind her he was sure she would show the womanly qualities he had missed at times—missed in all the girls he knew. They didn't realize that another side of life existed—the side he saw sometimes when he was at Kendallwood talking to the men who worked in his grandfather's immense factory.

His grandfather assured him that workers in the Kendall factory were paid more than workers in any other factory nearby. Old Peter Kendall had equipped a large playground for the children and done many things to improve conditions for those who worked for him.

"I'm going out to Kendallwood tomorrow, Valeria," Peter said. "Want to drive out with me?"

"Peter, dear, I'd love to, but I've been going so hard this week, I'm tired out."

"Another time, then," Peter said. "Grandfather has been asking about you, Val."

"Give him my love," she said sweetly.

In the darkness her mouth set in petulant lines. Dora Peter! Spending so much time in that dirty factory town with that dull old man. If he expected her to ride out there with him just any time the mood struck him, he'd learn better after they were married.

experience, he'd be pretty sure to say, "Show me a woman who doesn't want to find beauty preparations in her stocking Christmas morning, and I'll show you one who isn't interested in Christmas anyway."

He'd be right, too. Any girl who lists the presents she'd like to get generally puts cosmetics near the top.

However, a warning is in order. Don't start in hit or miss fashion to buy cosmetics for all the women on your list. If you want to give presents that will be useful as well as appreciated, put a good deal of thought and time into the selection of them.

Out-of-Place Gifts

It's downright silly to send a jar of heavy tissue cream to a 17-year-old with a typical schoolgirl complexion. It's just as ridiculous to give a lipstick and rouge set to a woman who never uses either. If you aren't perfectly certain of her tastes and habits as far as makeup is concerned, give more generally useful gifts, such as perfume and bath luxuries.

Speaking of gifts for the bathroom, there never has been a more lavish and handsome supply of preparations on the market. There are exquisite cakes of soap, fragrant as a field of spring flowers and done up in packages that are as smart as can be. You can find bathpowder, cologne and toilet water in harmonizing odors, of course.

If you really want to give a deluxe present, send a set of beautiful bath towels, bath mat and face cloths. In the box put a large roller of cleansing tissues in a color to match the towels.

For Ultimate Friend

If you know a woman's beauty needs well enough to give her creams and lotions, look at new sets that include the three basic complexion aids. A particularly nice one, made by a reliable house, contains jars of cleansing and tissue cream and a bottle of skin tonic. Another intended for women who spend most of their week-ends out of town, is filled with two creams, a tonic and cleansing tissues, astringent oil, powder and tooth paste.

How Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Bad Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fifth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminators, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxins.

Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)

tion of farmers to increase cotton acreage. We are not near rid of the excess supply of cotton, although it has been reduced very materially during the past two years. It is too late now to try any new plan for next year.

"The propaganda being spread for the purpose of swaying votes against the Bankhead bill, will not fool the farmers."

"The real motive behind this opposition is too apparent. The price of our cotton has doubled and the price of cotton seed has been multiplied by four, since this control plan was started two years ago."

"The only organized opposition to this program comes from those who are more interested in volume than price. However, the farmers are not being fooled by the scare stories about foreign growths of cotton, and the loss of foreign markets."

"They know more about these subjects than a lot of people who are writing whole pages about them. They know they are better with 13-cent cotton and $40 seed than they were with 6-cent cotton and $10 seed."

"My suggestion is that we stick to the Bankhead bill another year, and then take up a long-time program, if a better one can be presented."

Fortunately the car stood up. The doctor took the wheel, and that was the last driving for me—at least for the time being."

"I sold the car to C. E. Lane for $50 more than I paid for it, and continued to carry the mail by horse and buggy. Years passed and then I bought a model "T." I took the car out, learned to drive by myself, and have been driving ever since."

Mr. Powell has served under four postmasters, three of whom were Republicans. The first was the late J. R. Gibson, then J. E. Woodson, now in business at Mena. D. B. Thompson, a Democrat, and the present postmaster, J. A. Davis.

Beginning 30 years ago the postoffice was located in the building now occupied by R. L. Patterson grocery. A few years later it was moved to a site where Riddlebe Grocer company now stands, and from there to where the present postoffice is located. Numerous incidents have occurred which would make interesting reading.

GRIDIRON BRIEFS

By the Associated Press

Alabama's Crimson Tide, the Panthers of Pittsburgh and Colgate's Red Raiders—each hoping for an invitation to play Stanford in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena New Year's Day—brought their regular seasons to a victorious close Thursday as Kansas State captured the Big Six crown. Washington and Lee romped off with the Southern Conference title and Utah threw a monkey-wrench into the Rocky Mountain championship situation.

Alabama became an apparent stand-out for the Rose Bowl assignment when the Tide rolled over Vanderbilt's Commodores, 34 to 0, to wind up its campaign undefeated and untied and with at least a share in the Southeastern Conference championship.

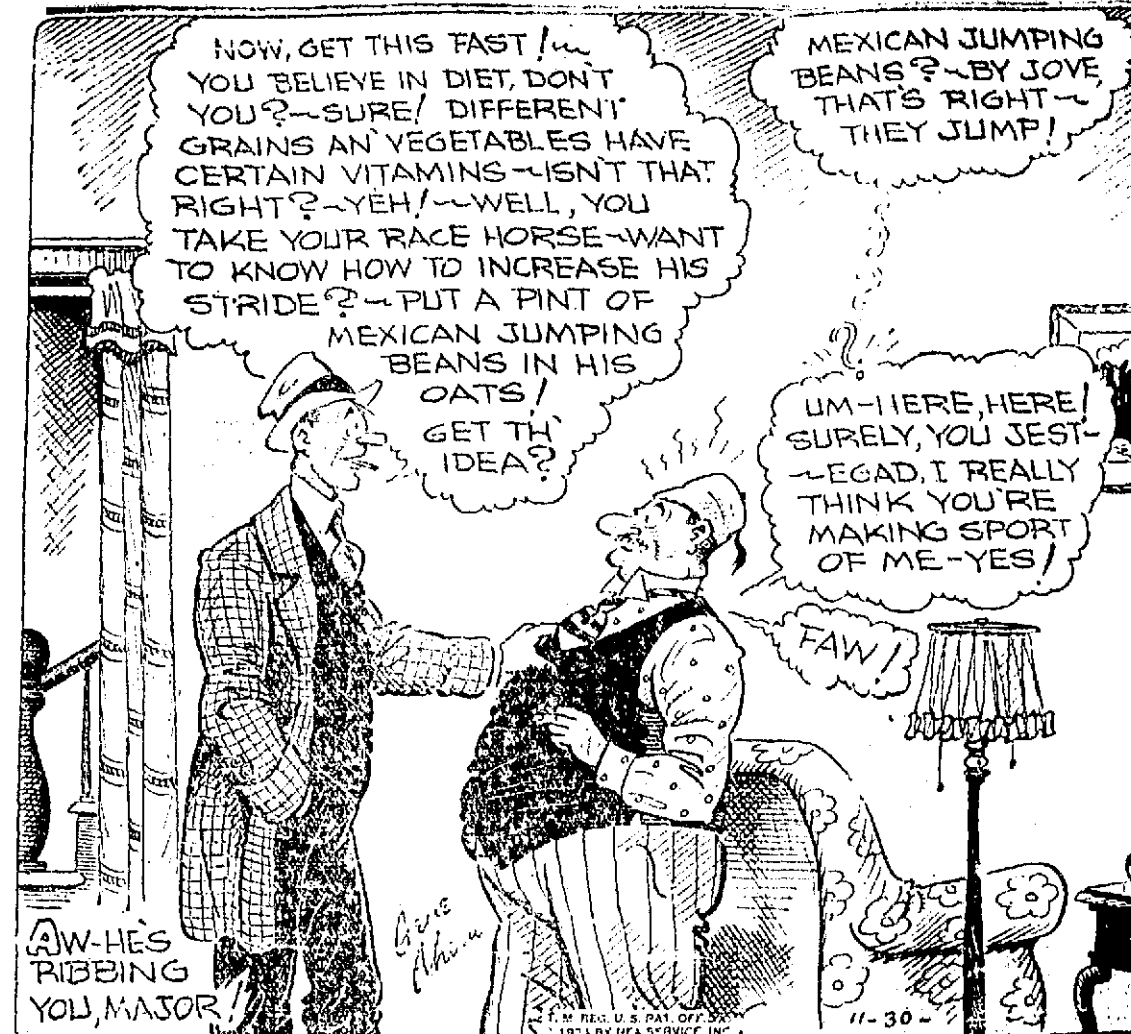

Fitt, beaten only by Minnesota's powerhouse, remained in the running for the Pasadena classic by overpowering its home-town rival, Carnegie Tech 20 to 0. Colgate, whose only setback came at the hands of Ohio State, encountered unexpected resistance from Tuss McLaughery's Brown Bears but pushed over a touchdown in the final quarter to win, 20 to 13.

Marking the end of Lyn Waldorf's first season as coach, Kansas State flashed unstoppable power in the last period to whip Nebraska, 19 to 7, and dethrone the Cornhuskers as Big Six title-holders. Washington Lee's Gen-erals, meanwhile, overcame South Carolina, 11 to 1, to claim the Southern Conference crown. South Carolina and Duke jointly were last year.

Whistles Dirge for 'Iron Horse'

Herald of a new era in railroading, this electric locomotive stands in the Philadelphia yards of the Pennsylvania railroad, successor to the "iron horse" in the parade of progress. The line has ordered 57 of these streamlined electric engines for high speed passenger service to be inaugurated early in 1935 between New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington.

Ford Develops "Mechanical Doctor"

Experts are shown here demonstrating the newest service development of the Ford Motor Company—the "mechanical doctor," or laboratory test set, which makes an unerring rapid diagnosis of the life of a motor car.

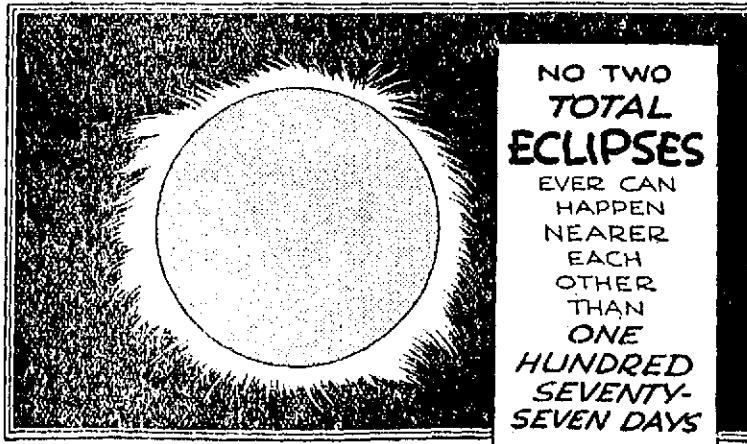

DESIGNED to "shoot" practically all of the troubles which may befall the modern motor car, a new laboratory test set has been developed by the Ford Motor Company and is being rapidly placed in service by Ford dealers throughout the country. The new test set, in reality a combination of testing instruments in a single compact unit, provides a means of testing quickly for any condition that affects engine or electrical system performance.

The new "mechanical doctor" for motor car diagnosis, while fascinating in appearance, is simple in operation, and infallible in its diagnosis. When a motor car arrives for regular tuning, or for diagnosis of some trouble, the mechanic—specially trained in its operation—places the portable test set in position and makes a scheduled series of tests.

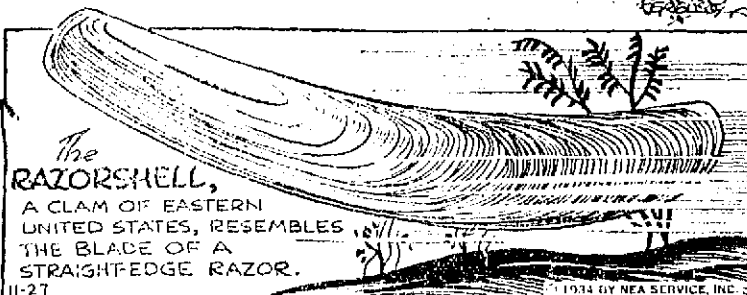

Tests which may be made with the new equipment include those of oil pressure, compression pressure, ignition efficiency, fuel pump flow, generator and battery condition, carburetion, lighting current, radio voltage, radio tube activity, and scores of others connected with the complex modern automobile. The accuracy and precision of the new equipment has made it an invaluable part of the service facilities of hundreds of Ford dealers.

France Will Not Push Extradition

Italy Bases Position on "Political Prisoners" Treaty of 1870

TURIN, Italy.—(AP)—Italian authorities were watching Monday night for possible repercussions of Premier Mussolini's second rebuff of Yugoslav attempts to place King Alexander's assassination under the international spotlight.

The Court of Appeals based its decision upon the Franco-Italian treaty of 1870 which does not allow extradition of political prisoners. The results had been considered a foregone conclusion, but were obtained after much thinking over documents said to show that France's appeal to this same treaty had cheated Mussolini of extradition of his arch-political enemies.

Lawrence Seaway Is Still Opposed

Roosevelt's Plea for Reconsideration Draws Opposition

ST. LOUIS.—(AP)—By a big majority, delegates to the annual Mississippi Valley Association convention late Tuesday rejected a plea of the national administration for ratification of the St. Lawrence waterway treaty.

The action followed by a few hours a plea by Secretary of War Dorn for support of the treaty, which failed of ratification in the last senate. President Roosevelt has announced the intention of resubmitting the treaty to the next congress.

Representative W. E. Disney of Oklahoma urged that the Arkansas river be made navigable so that a "tremendous area will receive the benefits of low freight rates."

"Engineers tell us that it is entirely practical to make the Arkansas river navigable from its mouth to a point near Tulsa," he said.

"Estimates of the cost, made by different engineers, range from less than $170,000,000 to $240,000,000. The cost of this plan change traffic is not now available sufficient to pay its operating expense and an interest and amortization charge on the investment."

"With cheap power and water rates industries would spring up in Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas. Under such conditions we should have more oil refineries, more flour mills, packing houses, shoe factories, furniture factories, cotton mills and clothing factories. These industries naturally would locate close to water transportation and within the zone of cheap power."

"If we are to have an increased industrial development in the United States, there is no area in which it is more logical for that development to take place than in the valleys of the Arkansas, the White and Red rivers, provided cheap power and cheap transportation is forthcoming."

France Gives Up Saar to Germany

Abandons Plebiscite Campaign—Germany Will Pay Her for Mines

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Territory.—(AP)—France, it was said Monday night, has virtually withdrawn from the Saar plebiscite fight, making a large Nazi victory probable in January.

Foreign Minister Pierre Laval and Chancellor Hitler, said an unconfirmed report, have reached an understanding under which France agrees not to press the anti-Nazi cause and to talk no more about sending the French army into the Saar.

In return the Nazis have agreed to negotiate a financial settlement for the Saar mines as soon as possible.

Laval, it was said, has indicated both to Berlin authorities and to anti-Nazis in the Saar that he is unwilling to continue the battle in favor of a status quo, which would leave the Saar under League of Nations jurisdiction, waged by his predecessor, the late Louis Bartho.

Bartho was the mopepiece for anti-Nazis at Geneva in their effort to obtain if possible a district or two for France and prevent Hitler from obtaining an overwhelming majority in the plebiscite.

Grace Moore to Sing With Ford Symphony

GRACE MOORE, who, because of motion picture and radio performances, is probably the best-known operatic soprano in America today, will be guest soloist of the Ford Sunday Evening Hour, Sunday, December 1. The program is heard over a coast-to-coast network of Columbia Broadcasting System stations, from 8 to 9 o'clock, eastern standard time.

Because of the unusual combination of talent and beauty with which Miss Moore has been endowed, her reputation stands not only upon her prominence as a leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, but also because of accomplishments in other fields. Before making her operatic debut she was starred in the musical comedy, "Up in the Clouds," and in Irving Berlin's "Music Box Revue." She made her debut with the Metropolitan Opera Company as "Mimi" in "La Boheme" in 1929, since when she has been engaged for every season. Following her operatic successes, she was eagerly sought after by radio broadcasters, and has just recently completed a sensational successful motion picture, with herself in the role of heroine.

In the Ford Sunday Evening Hour, Miss Moore will be featured with the Ford Symphony Orchestra and chorus, under the direction of Victor Kolar.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

TEXT: I Thess. 1:1-10
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for December 2.
BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

Christianity began in testimony, or witness. Its power and its continuance depend upon the faithfulness of its disciples in witnessing the truth and to salvation.

It was as Jesus witnessed to small groups that the people became attracted to Him, and to His teaching, and either desired to follow Him or accepted His call to discipleship, that they might know more of all He had to teach. As these early disciples imbibed that teaching, Jesus sent them forth, first of all the twelve—later called apostles—and later some seventy evangelists, that going two by two through the villages they might talk of Him and of the things that they had received.

It was through this same power of witness that Peter, on the Day of Pentecost, aroused the consciences of men and women so that many were added to the church, and it was this same witnessing urge and spirit that sent Paul and his companions forth throughout the ancient world to tell the story of what God had done for them through Jesus Christ and His Salvation.

Here in our lesson we have a sample of the witness Paul is writing on behalf of himself and his companions, Silvanus and Timothy, to the church at Thessalonica, which had been instrumental in establishing. It is a typical letter of Paul.

First of all, full of the thankfulness that seems upmost and deepest in Paul's religious attitude and expression. Beneath everything else in Paul's life was this great outpouring of thankfulness to God for the unspeakable gift of Christ in saving him from his guilt and unworthiness, and attuning his mind and heart to the richness and fullness of love.

With that thankfulness is linked the prayerfulness Paul was always manifesting as his own practice and enjoining other Christians. Thankfulness and prayer were two great links in his relationship to God and his fellow man.

Then we have the readiness of Paul always to commend the works of love and righteousness. At times he could be very critical and could speak very plain words in rebuke where he felt they were called for.

But he had a keen eye for discerning earnestness and right purpose, and he was never slow in expressing some word of approval and encouragement to those who were seeking to know and to do the right. He makes it quite clear to these in the church "patience of hope," however, Paul usually expressed some subtle word or some criticism or suggestion that might keep those to whom he was writing from becoming too well satisfied with themselves. So in this case he reminds them of the largeness and fullness of the gospel.

He reminds them that what they have heard is a call from God to the highest and holiest things, and that to profess the Christian life and to work to lead it means to become examples to others. He congratulates these Christians that they have in fact given a good witness and that their faith in God has been spread abroad.

All this is more remarkable when we note that these to whom Paul was writing had been saved from perverted ideas and attitudes. They had, as Paul says, turned from idols to serve the true and living God.

What a picture is here of the reality of the Christian life! Why cannot every professing Christian be such a witness?

Widow of Nelson Public Enemy No. 1

Helen Gillis Believed at Large With Elusive
John Hamilton

CHICAGO—(AP)—Diminutive Helen Gillis Thursday night unofficially became the nation's first woman public enemy.

Hundreds of federal agents, police, sheriffs and their deputies scoured highways and byways to ferret out the widow of Baby Face Nelson, killer of three federal agents, who fell mortally wounded by bullets from guns of two flying agents.

With her in the flight from authorities was believed to be John Hamilton, last lieutenant of the crime-crazed Dillinger mob.

And should officialdom meet the desperate pair, gunfire will not be withheld. The mercy Inspector Samuel P. Cowley and Federal Agent Herman E. Hollis showed the woman believed to be Mrs. Gillis will not be repeated. It was that mercy, apparently, that cost them their lives Tuesday.

Inspector H. H. Clegg who flew here from Washington to assist Melvin H. Purvis, head of the local Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, commented tersely: "We want her."

No gun girl was the petite, 34-year-old Helen Wawrzyniak when she married Lester M. Gillis who later became George (Baby Face) Nelson. She was born and reared in Chicago's Northwest Side.

She is the mother of two children, Arden, four, now at the home of Nelson's mother, Mrs. Mary Gillis, 65, and Ronald, five, reported to be at the home of one of Nelson's sisters in Bismarck, Wash.

It was understood that her bobbed brown hair has been dyed blonde and it was expected that like her husband and others of the Dillinger mob, she has sought to obliterate her fingerprints. The government's official description lists her as five feet two, fair and blue of eyes. She had a mole on her left wrist, but it is likely that has been removed.

Indication that the government is convinced that Hamilton is alive, and not dead as reported from time to time, came from Clegg.

"We want John Hamilton," he said, but refused further comment.

Lovable

CHAPTER VIII

IN the entrance hall Valeria raised her lips for Peter's kiss. "Darling, I'm not letting you sleep. I've simply got to get some sleep. You know I'm on that Junior League ticket sale. So you'll have to rush along."

"I was going anyway," Peter said. "You forget I'm a working man. It's after 2 o'clock."

"I do forget," Valeria answered, "because there's no reason why you should be."

Peter said nothing. He and Valeria had been over this same ground so many times. She couldn't see that a man shouldn't be satisfied to sit back and do nothing, living on money he hadn't earned.

"Quixotic," Valeria had called him. Well, she wasn't really mature yet. Twenty-two years of being babied. He fought down the impatience he always felt when the question of continuing his work—the work for which he had been trained and about which he dreamed—came up between them.

His only ally was his grandfather, who believed in men working. That was because he, himself, had worked hard all his life until the last few years. He had built his vast fortune by hard work.

All the other members of the Kendall family were on Valeria's side.

"Valeria's right," his mother would say. "It's absurd to wait until you finish the Willard job before you marry. You have plenty of money of your own."

Everyone agreed that it was foolish to wait until he completed his first big architectural job—the Willard building—before he and Valeria married. Peter would every stone in place and the last finishing touch put to the interior before he sailed on the six months' tour of Europe he and Valeria had planned for their wedding trip.

Valeria didn't want to wait to be married, yet she was unwilling to compromise by taking a brief trip to Florida as a honeymoon and then sailing for Europe after the work was completed. She had decided that if Peter was going to be stubborn, she would be stubborn too. She had refused to announce the engagement. She had the feeling that she was punishing him. Moreover, a girl's good time was certainly slowed up after her engagement was known.

"Darling," Valeria said, "I'm not letting you sleep."

VALERIA slipped out of her evening wrap and into Dirk's arms. After a long moment she asked, "Where are the others?"

"They'll be along presently. What do we care?"

"I care. I can't afford to be careless."

"Neither can I. You don't suppose my reputation would be whitewashed by being seen about with you?"

Valeria laughed. Their eyes met and held in amusement. They understood each other, saw through each other, but that did not lessen the dangerous attraction each held for the other.

She turned, approving her surroundings—the fire blazing in the stone fireplace, the ivory paneled walls, the irregular pattern of the floor, forming squares and triangles of red and black, the rich red damask at the windows. There were cozy nooks piled with cushions in brilliant modernistic pattern, and charming furniture—old and new. Through the wide doorway Valeria could see the dining room table, where silver platters heaped with sandwiches and hors d'oeuvres had been placed.

Presently, she knew, Dirk's discreet, soft-voiced Chinese servant would appear with excellently blended drinks and ruby-colored wine glasses.

Lying back in her chair, she appraised Dirk with half-closed eyes. He was not good-looking. His dark eyes were too small, his features were aquiline. He looked very neat on a tennis court, but she could never picture him playing football or pulling with a college boat crew, as Peter had.

Dirk's servant opened the door and came padding softly toward them with a tray.

"Telephone, Mister Dirk," he said in his soft, melancholy voice.

DIRK went into the hall, returning in a moment. "It's that young idiot, Don Kendall, phoning from downstairs. Coming up for a drink."

"What'll I do?"

"Go into the guest room. I'll get rid of him in a moment."

Valeria obeyed. She closed the door and leaned, trembling a little, against it.

In a moment she heard voices, Dirk's and Don's. Now and then she caught a word and once or twice heard Don laugh. After a couple of drinks he would be gone. Everything would be as it was before the others didn't arrive on the scene before he left. That dusk, Dirk would like nothing better than to open the door and scream out: "Oh, Valeria, what a start you gave me!"

Valeria switched off the light and, very cautiously, opened the door. Don, slumped in a chair, was holding a glass in his hand. Dirk, poised, stood near the mantel, coolly lighting a cigarette.

Don was standing up now. He crossed to a small table, put down his glass. Valeria heard him laugh. "Nice taste you have, Dirk—in purses and women!"

Valeria closed the door. What could Don mean?

It was then she discovered her loss. She had left her small party bag, the jeweled monogrammed bag Peter had given her, outside.

Don laid the bag back on the table, staring down at it.

"Another drink?" Dirk suggested.

"Thanks, no more. I'll be running along."

"Drop in tomorrow night. A crowd is coming over after Fay Richter's party."

"Thanks, but I have another date," Don said, almost curtly.

Dirk waited until he heard the elevator door slam, and then knocked on the guest room door.

Jobless Increase, Declares A. F. of L.

550,000 More in October
Than Year Ago, Says
President Green

WASHINGTON—(AP)—On the eve of a significant administration decision as to its future relief policy, the American Federation of Labor Thursday night reported that 550,000 more men and women were unemployed than in October a year ago.

William Green, president of the federation, interpreted this to mean that the relief problem over the coming winter was "the most serious this nation has ever faced."

"We are entering the winter of 1934," he said, "with 550,000 more out of work than we had at this time a year ago. The American Federation of Labor estimates show 10,671,000 without work in industry in October, 1934 as compared to 10,122,000 in October, 1933."

Meantime, Harry Hopkins, relief director; Secretary Morgenthau and Undersecretary Tugwell of the Agriculture Department, were headed toward Warm Springs, Ga.

At a conference with President Roosevelt Friday or Saturday, a session regarded as one of the most important of pre-Congress gatherings, the relief problem will be discussed and policies formed.

Foremost among proposals to be studied is a plan for transforming Hopkins' Emergency Relief Administration into an agency for the rehabilitation of destitute families on a permanent basis by lending them enough money "at one shot" as Hopkins put it, to make them self-supporting. This and an expanded work relief program in one form or another would supersede the present method of doling out small amounts at a time to keep people from starving.

Another question to be answered is how for the relief Administration might go in building rural industrial communities for the destitute. Fifty such communities have been approved tentatively by FERA. Homes and small farms will be leased to needy families. An appeal to industry to spread its manufacturing facilities into these towns was expected. Also, a move to co-ordinate the relief administration's work with the somewhat similar subsistence homestead division under Secretary Ickes is likely.

Green said that the increase in unemployment was partly accounted for by a 26 per cent drop in business activity and "by the fact that the effort to increase employment in industry is not so general as it was at this time last year." He made no mention of a reported industrial pickup during November.

True Thanksgiving as President Remembers
Fight to Regain Health

WARM SPRINGS, Ga.—(AP)—President Roosevelt observed Thanksgiving Thursday with a deep feeling in his heart for this place where 10 years ago he fought back from an attack of infantile paralysis.

The day was devoted entirely to the Thanksgiving day occasion climaxed by a turkey dinner at the founders' banquet in Georgia hall. The president sliced a huge goblet for Mrs. Roosevelt and children patients at his table.

Despite overcast skies, tourists crowded into the small community to witness the dedication of the two new buildings of the foundation by Mr. Roosevelt late in the afternoon.

The buildings dedicated were the new Kress hall, a dormitory, and the Columbus (Ga.) colomade, erected in front of Georgia hall, the administration building of the foundation.

The president spent luncheon and the afternoon with the trustees of the foundation.

$3,300 Diversion Alleged by U. S.

Woodford Collected From
State for Freight Bill U.
S. Paid, Is Charge

LITTLE ROCK—An accountant from the comptroller general's office in Washington testified Tuesday in the embezzlement trial of Lieut. Col. Edward Woodford in federal court that the federal government had paid $3,300 freight charges on National Guard supplies for which Woodford already had received a check from the state.

The former United States property and disbursing officer of the Arkansas National Guard is accused of converting the $3,300 to his own use in one of the eight counts for which he was indicted.

The government witness was Fred T. Livings, who testified the $3,300 bill was included in several freight invoices paid by the government after they had been approved by Woodford.

Another witness, M. A. Cole, representative of the General Accounting Office in Washington, testified to paying a charge of $480 for overhauling and rewinding of 24 magnetos on National Guard trucks by Jennings Motors, after which E. F. Jennings, president of the company, testified his firm was not equipped to rewind magnetos and that no such work was done by it.

Mr. Livings said his company received a $480 government check, for which he had signed a blank voucher, from Woodford and had applied to Jennings for payment for a Chrysler automobile which he said he assumed was being purchased for the National Guard.

Mr. Livings said that Woodford did not report receipt of $3,300 paid to him by the state of Arkansas as freight charges on supplies shipped to Camp Pike by the government for the 142d Field Artillery under agreement between officers of the War Department and the Arkansas National Guard.

Under a lengthy cross-examination by DuVal L. Furman and J. A. Teller, lawyers for Woodford, Mr. Livings said he made a routine audit of Woodford's accounts in 1929 and found no irregularities at that time, but that the examination covered only the month in which the audit was made.

The present investigation of Woodford's official transactions began in October, 1933, he said, and includes some records of his office for more than 10 years past. Mr. Livings added that he went to Woodford's office before the latter's resignation in November, 1933, and offered to let him explain the questioned transactions.

Two Types of Deposits
The two forms used by United States property and disbursing officers in making deposits to the two accounts used by them were identified by Mr. Livings and their use explained.

Money deposited in the disbursing officer's "official account" is placed to his credit by the treasurer of the United States and is subject to check by the disbursing officer. Money deposited to the "personal credit" of the disbursing officer is payable to the treasurer of the United States and is not subject to check.

The $3,300 check which Woodford is charged with misappropriating was placed in either account, Mr. Livings said, but it was deposited in the "official account," on which Woodford could check at any time.

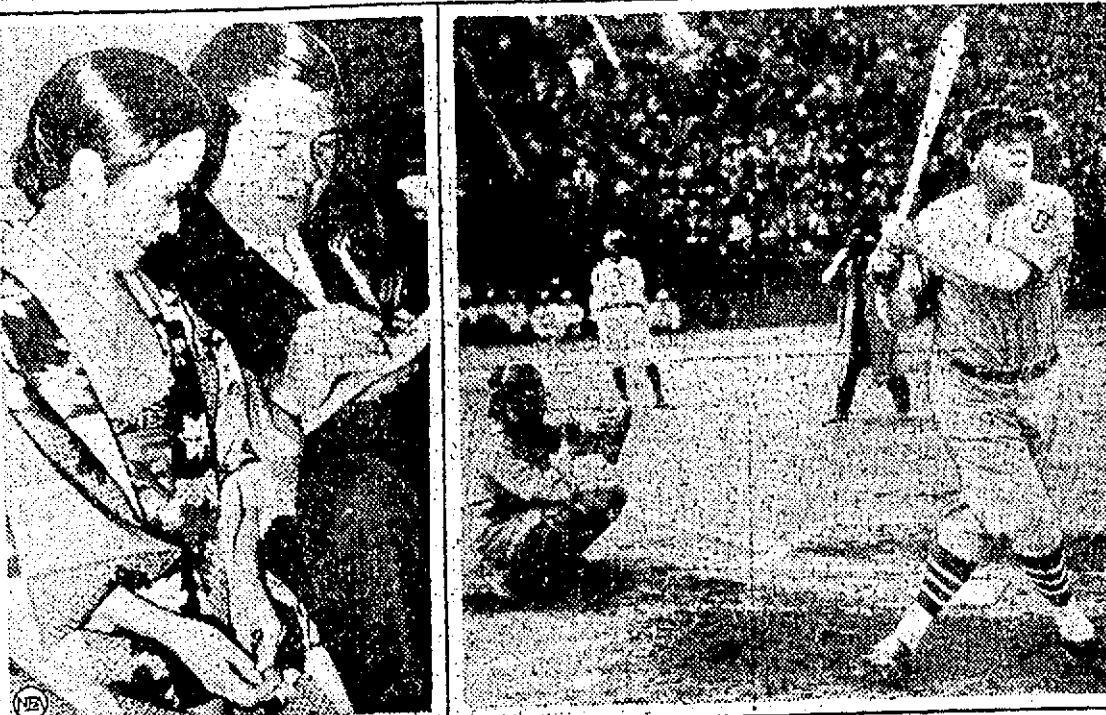

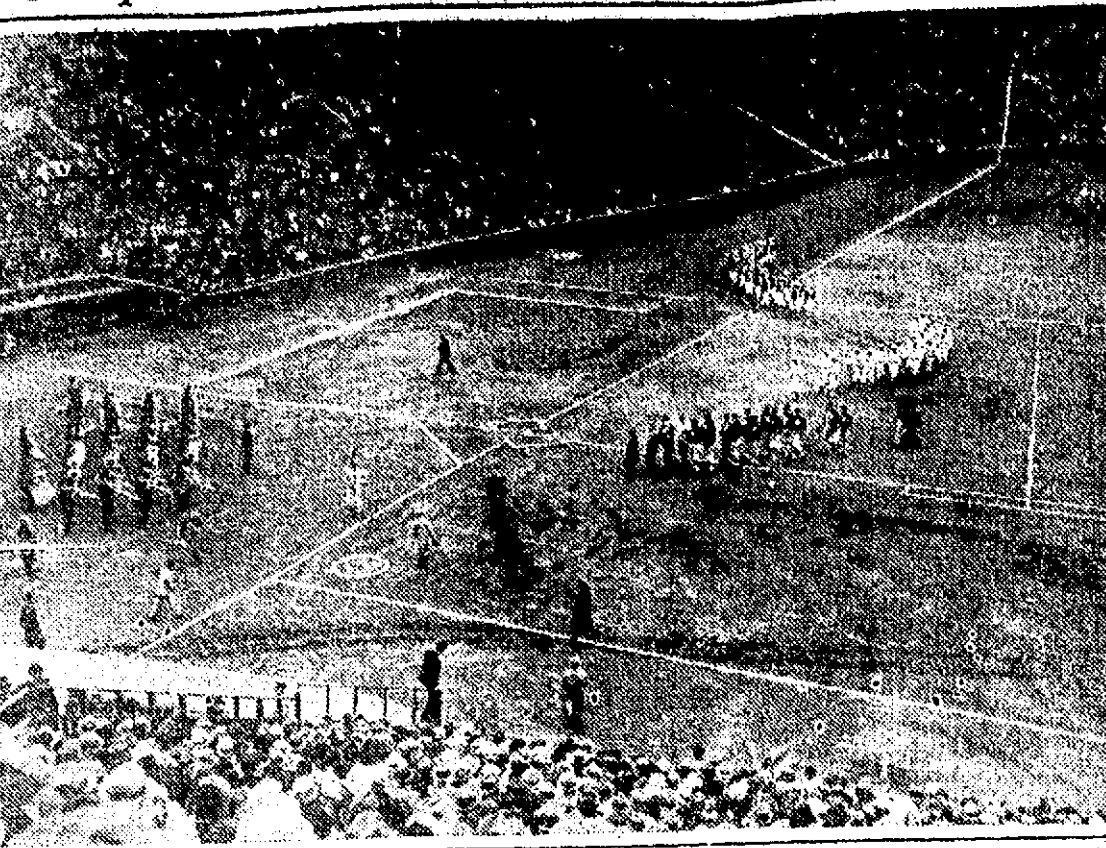

Mr. Livings retired from the stand to complete a list of freight invoices, and it is expected that these will be introduced Wednesday.

Adj. Gen. E. L. Comper of the Arkansas National Guard, who testified Monday that the state agreed to pay freight charges on the government's shipment of supplies, was recalled to the stand to identify copies of a telegram from the Militia Bureau in Washington and a reply from his office confirming the arrangement.

He said that he does not devote all his time to National Guard affairs, and that he gave no thought to the manner of settling the freight bills.

General Comper testified that the appropriation made in 1929 for the 142d Field Artillery would have lapsed at the close of the fiscal year July 1, 1931, and that the money for freight payments was withdrawn and turned over to Woodford in a lump sum so that it would be available for that purpose when needed. He said that an opinion was secured from the attorney general's office to the effect that the withdrawal was legal and that Woodford might hold the money for paying the freight bills when they become due.

Slayer to Plead "Unwritten Law"

Husband, Who Slew Wife and Priest, Now on Verge of Collapse

NEW YORK (AP)—By an ironic twist, the pretty 17-year-old bride of Joseph Lieb Steinmetz, 22, former theological student, insisted he buy the automatic pistol used to slay her and the Rev. Joseph J. Leonard, Catholic priest, it was disclosed Tuesday night.

The disclosure came from Steinmetz's lawyer, Meyer Machlis, as he indicated the "unwritten law" would be invoked as a defense. He said Steinmetz told him the pistol was bought at his wife's suggestion on their honeymoon trip from Los Angeles.

Haggard and on the verge of collapse, Steinmetz, who killed his wife and the priest in a Manhattan hotel room, was arraigned in homicide court and held without bail for a hearing next Monday.

Through his lawyer Steinmetz declared he found his bride, formerly a Hollywood dancer, and the priest "in an embarrassing situation" in the latter's room.

Then, said Machlis, "everything went black in front of Steinmetz" and the boy grabbed the pistol from Leonard's coat where it had been placed for safekeeping and "blazed away."

As the district attorney called more than 11 witnesses before the Grand Jury considering the slaying, the city's medical examiners announced that their autopsy of the priest's body showed he had been "completely intoxicated" when slain.

The wife, whose father said she was the granddaughter of Samuel Henry Piles, former United States senator of Seattle, Wash., now residing in Beverly Hills, Calif., was also intoxicated, but in a lesser degree, the physician said.

26 L. S. U. Students Draw Suspensions

Are Dropped for Their Public Petition Against
"Kingfish"

BATON ROUGE, La.—(AP)—President James M. Smith of Louisiana State University said Tuesday night that 26 students of journalism had been suspended for "gross disrespect" because they signed a petition Tuesday condemning university authorities for "censoring" the Reveille, student publication.

The entire staff of the Reveille resigned Monday because President Smith informed them they would not be permitted to print anything that might be displeasing to Senator Huey P. Long, the state's dictator.

Students of the journalism school met Tuesday and drew up petitions declaring they would not contribute anything further to the newspaper until the staff was restored and the "censorship" lifted.

Dr. Smith said the students were guilty of "gross disrespect in giving to the press a petition addressed to the president and the Faculty Committee on Student Publications asking for reinstatement of the Reveille staff before the president of the university."

He said the suspensions were made "subject to the approval of the Board of Supervisors which will be called to meet in the near future." Senator Long recently had himself appointed a member of the board.

Arkansas Business Recovery Notable

Southwestern Portion
Picking Up Again in November

A business pictograph in the November 15 issue of Forbes magazine shows that the central, western, southwestern and southern sections of Arkansas have had good business gains in the past two weeks.

The portion of the state including Paris, Hot Springs, Little Rock, North Little Rock, Batesville, Newport, Heber Springs, Conway and the portion of the state between Little Rock and Memphis shows a business improvement of from 139 to 188 per cent above last year.

"The most important gains have been made in Illinois but Florida is not far behind," the article said. "Iowa, Mississippi and Arkansas have also shown substantial improvement."

Only small parts of the northern and southeastern sections of the state have shown no substantial business improvement over last year, the map shows, and a small section of the state in the extreme northeastern corner shows a downward trend in business of one month or more.

Little Rock is listed among 10 cities in which business in the past few weeks has compared more favorably with the same period a year earlier than at any time since early May.

The following statement was made in regard to Little Rock: "Another city in which October exceeded its 'quota.' Business here has been continuously ahead of the previous year throughout the past 12 months."

Kidnaped Texans Freed by Bandits

Paris Policemen Released
After Wild Ride Into Oklahoma

PARIS, Texas.—(AP)—Two kidnaped Paris policemen returned Tuesday from a wild ride into Oklahoma to tell of being held captive for 18 hours by two fugitives who threatened them with death, starved them and finally turned them loose in an isolated mountain region north of Antlers.

"We started for the two, Newt Baker and H. R. Marks, when they tried to question two suspicious characters at a filling station here early Monday. The men whipped out pistols forced the officers into their own patrol car and carried them away."

Authorities here said they were certain the kidnapers were Ambrose Nix and Arthur Goetz, alleged robbers who broke jail at Holdenville, Okla., a few days ago and then robbed Q. Mitchell's beer and sandwich stand, north of Tyler, Texas, of $110 and a quantity of cigarettes Sunday night. Mitchell and a negro porter were left tied to trees.

Baker and Marks said the two men traveled north from Paris, circling around towns and cities whenever possible. The officers were overpowered about 3:30 a. m. and at dawn they were near Rattan, Okla. The bandits hid all day in the woods, keeping the officers covered with pistols.

When darkness came Monday night the outlaws drove out of the woods and, about 9:30 p. m., released Baker and Marks on a mountainside 40 miles north of Antlers. The officers were warned to stay off the highway until daybreak.

Francisco.
Coroner A. E. Haegle announced that while the theory that the children died from carbon monoxide has been discarded he has not definitely accepted suffocation as the cause and he will not until he has seen the report of Dr. George R. Moffitt, Harrisburg.

NEW YORK (AP)—By an ironic twist, the pretty 17-year-old bride of Joseph Lieb Steinmetz, 22, former theological student, insisted he buy the automatic pistol used to slay her and the Rev. Joseph J. Leonard, Catholic priest, it was disclosed Tuesday night.

The disclosure came from Steinmetz's lawyer, Meyer Machlis, as he indicated the "unwritten law" would be invoked as a defense. He said Steinmetz told him the pistol was bought at his wife's suggestion on their honeymoon trip from Los Angeles.
